

Bill Wilde Biography

Throughout decades of living in Shingle Springs, Bill has come to love not only El Dorado County, but its people. Bill and his wife, LaDawn, raised five children in the county - all of whom graduated from Ponderosa High School. They are happy that three (soon to be four) of their children and their families have returned to live in the region.

Bill previously served on a planning commission for six years, including one year as chair. While serving as a commissioner, he reviewed and provided input on community and infrastructure improvement projects, including a number of challenging developments.

Bill enjoys volunteering with a railroad group and at his church. While living in El Dorado County, he has come to love the many outdoor activities available.

Professionally, Bill has spent his career in the telecommunications industry as an entrepreneur, executive, project manager, and engineer. In some of those roles, Bill has interfaced with government agencies and worked with regulatory compliance, including CEQA.

Bill was a co-founder of an early data center company which was sold to Digital Realty Trust in 2004. This experience was invaluable in seeing how development works from the inside after seeing other perspectives as a planning commissioner and commercial real estate investor.

Being aware of the work of a LAFCO for decades, Bill is enjoying his current service as the Public Member and contributing to maintaining what is special about our beloved El Dorado County while moving ahead with plans for the future.
